J. Russell Love M.L.A. Speaks Here

Answers Opponents Effectively

With charts and official documents, Mr. Love, expressed the criticisms of government opponents as being ridiculous and without foundation. He said the opponents of the government "dare not present a true and honest picture of the government's financial record" for if they did, they would confirm the views of unbiased authorities who state that Alberta has had the most efficient and economical government of any province in Canada during the past twelve years. They talk of tax slavery, wasteful expenditures, duplication of services, appalling mounting debt and unbearable costs of government. They picture an increase in public debt since 1921 of $85,000,000.00 when they know that it is only $55,000,000.00, as the following facts reveal.

Public Debt
December 31, 1921.
Net Bonded Debt	$37,463,000.00
Net Unbonded Debt	$5,530,000.00
Indebted Debt	$43,000,000.00
Total Debt	$38,400,000.00

June 30, 1933.
Net Bonded Debt	$181,141,000.00
Net Unbonded Debt	$9,896,000.00
Indebted Debt	$191,037,000.00
Total Debt	$191,037,000.00

They know that in 1921 the indirect debt contained seventeen millions for railways and four millions for the university and other railway losses and university debts are now contained in our bonded debt, yet they persist in misrepresenting our public debt. If the policies advocated by Liberals and Conservatives during the past twelve years had been carried out, our losses on railways would have been considerably greater and our public debt for highways alone would have added an additional ten million to our public debt.

While our total debt has increased 60% since 1921 the debts of all provinces in Canada have increased 140% since 1921. The soundness of our debt situation is revealed by the fact that while our debt has increased 60%, our sinking fund and special investment funds during the same period have increased from $1,796,000 to $10,998,000 or over five hundred per cent.

Of our fifty-six million dollars increase in debt, twenty-four millions are for highways. In 1921 we only had seventeen miles of gravelled highways. Today we have over two thousand miles. Our debt must be increased until our gravelled highway system is completed right to the Saskatchewan boundary. We keep open during the winter months more miles of highway than any province in Canada expect Ontario yet our "treasurers of economy" are constantly asking the government to spend more money on highways. Of the seven and three quarter million dollars increase in debt for public building the only word of criticism is that the Edmonton Normal School should not have been built. Our opponents forget that the Edmonton

Normal School was established by the former Liberal Government. The present government continued the Edmonton Normal School until 1923 when it was closed for reasons of economy. When better times returned it was found that seven hundred newly trained teachers were required each year to fill the annual vacancies. Only about five hundred could be properly trained at Camrose and Calgary so it was found necessary to re-open the Edmonton Normal School in 1928. The need of more teachers in normal times and the lack of available teaching facilities made it necessary to build the Edmonton Normal School. The enrollment at Edmonton last year was two hundred and sixty-two. The Edmonton Normal School is closed today it was justified in 1929 and will be required again as soon as normal times return.

AUBURDALE

The dramatic society held its second meeting of the season in the Auburn Lake School on Wednesday. This meeting was chiefly for the purpose of organizing a new company of thirteen members. Twelve survived, we don't say how many we started with.

The Junior U. F. A. are holding their annual meeting in the Ballroom School, one Monday. This meeting is for the purpose of organizing a new company of thirteen members. Twelve survived, we don't say how many we started with.

We hear reports of some skating on Twenty-five Lake, however they say the ice is not as good as it could be.

Mrs. W. J. Seale was a weekend visitor at Edmonton. Also Mr. and Mrs. P. Jensen.

We hear reports of several to be week-end visitors to Edmonton. Lloyd Everett, Camille Caron, Ruth Seale, Ellis Cleland, Mr. and Mrs. Hetherington, Hector Lawrence, and Garth Hetherington.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleland spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. H. McKinnis.

What we all wonder,???

Who is going to the play and dance Friday night?

When we're going to get ice for skating and snow for sleighing.

If Camille's new radiowill succeed in keeping him home evenings?

How seven people all comfortably in one car, all Jodies?

If anybody fell through the ice yet in their attempt to skate?

Launch Hull Memorial Fund

The Alberta Prohibition Association was considerably disrupted for a few days after the sudden death of their General Secretary, H. H. Hull, who for 15 years had borne the major responsibility of the temperance work in Alberta. However there were some strong men and women that had been attracted to the earnest work that Mr. Hull was doing and so executive had been built up including some of the leading ministers as well as business men and women of the Province and although they were shocked from the sudden death of their leader, they soon rallied and the next day after they buried their leader they called the members of the Executive who lived in Edmonton together and prayerfully and earnestly discussed the future plans of the Association. At that meeting they decided that the work must be carried on although there seemed to be no available man to immediately take the place of the General Secretary until a suitable man could be decided upon.

The Vice-President, Mr. S. A. G. Barnes was chosen to act as chairman of this Committee with the assistance of H. S. Hegler, who is Treasurer of the Association and Mr. Walter Dredge, who is Secretary of the Executive. These three men have been carrying on in a most satisfactory manner owing to the fact that all three men are very busy business men but gave as much time as possible to the Association.

Recently there was another meeting of the Executive and the idea of a Hull Memorial was decided upon. Their idea is to build a monument to Mr. Hull's name to be erected in the city of Edmonton. This monument will be erected in the city of Edmonton. This monument will be erected in the city of Edmonton.

There will be embodied in the new program the idea of offering the service of the Association as a true servant to the people in every city, town, village and rural community, instead of being an organization to be served. Service will be its motto. Rev. H. W. Zook of Wainwright, former editor of the Wainwright Record, will assist in managing this campaign from the office of the Association which is located in room 714 Tegner Bldg., Edmonton, Alberta.

The proceeds, go to the Women's Institute for the purpose of giving Christmas Cheer and aid to many who would otherwise be dejected, in these trying times, many necessities of life.

Let everyone get back of this Organization and see that they get the full deserved support to carry on this wonderful work and in doing so it will bring back to you that feeling of satisfaction and happiness you will deserve for your effort to help those who are less fortunate.

Don't forget the date, Monday, December 11th, 1933.

Change Of License Year Desired

The Alberta Motor Association are asking the provincial government to declare the auto license year to be from April 1st to March 31st, instead of from January 1st to December 31st as at present. Copies of a petition to this effect will shortly be sent all over Alberta and presented to Hon. W. L. Walsh, lieutenant governor of Alberta. It is felt that many more cars would be in use during the first three months of the year, and as a consequence more gas tax would be collected during these months. There can scarcely be an argument against this move.—Viking News.

The question is, why raise babies when manufactured war babies are the envy of all mothers, and no danger of them going on relief.

Big Minstrel Show Coming Soon

Special attention is again called to the fact that the time mentioned for the curtain to rise means exactly what it says.

Any one who figures there will still be time by coming later will not only miss part of the opening numbers but make it unpleasant for those who have come to enjoy the show.

If you are figuring to one all of the show be in your seats by 4 o'clock for Matinee and 8:30 for evening. Late arrivals always create disturbance not only to those taking part but to those who have to get up to let you get a seat. Get there early.

PLACE EXCHANGE DUMPING DUTY ON IMPORTS

Ottawa, Ont.—Action to impose an exchange dumping duty on imports from the United States of a class or kind made in Canada was taken by the Dominion government.

The government declared the United States dollar to possess a value of 100 cents Canadian currency for duty purposes. The effect of this is that the difference between the current rate of exchange and par will be collected as an exchange dumping duty on imports from the United States of a class or kind made in Canada.

Since the United States dollar began to depreciate in value, the government has been watching the situation closely. At the present time the United States dollar is at a discount of approximately 2½ to 3 per cent. in terms of Canadian currency. This margin, which offsets the protection afforded to Canadian manufacturers by the tariff to the extent of the difference between the relative currencies, was evidently regarded by the government as sufficient to warrant action. An order-in-council fixing the value of the U.S. dollar for duty purposes was consequently issued through.

Indications are the government of the United Kingdom contemplates measures to meet the situation as it affects that country. At present there is a six per cent. discount as between the United States dollar and sterling.

United Kingdom Sees Activity In Industry

Increase In Railway Traffic. And Other Improvement Noted.

London, Eng.—From several directions have come indications of the United Kingdom's steady advance in greater industrial activity.

All four of Britain's great railway groups issued traffic figures showing considerable gain over those for the corresponding week last year. A "busy Britain" train will start early in the new year on a tour covering the whole southern district and part of the northern district of England, calling at 80 important commercial centres.

Savings banks reported greater business and revenue from amusement taxes was said to have risen.

A great steel firm will begin immediately work to supply more than 30 miles of steel pipe for Jerusalem, from the days of King Herod, has depended for its water supply on wells and springs. Another firm has received a contract worth more than $1,000,000 to equip telephone exchanges in Lithuania.

Federal Aid

Financial Assistance For Saskatchewan Government Considered At Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont.—Financial assistance to the Saskatchewan government was considered by the Dominion cabinet and action taken, but no details could be secured. The prairie province will have as difficult a problem this winter as it faced last year, because of the drouth and grasshopper plague which caused an almost complete crop failure.

Representations were made to the Dominion Government some days ago seeking assistance along the same lines as last winter.

It is understood the government took action Thursday to advance a portion of the money the province will need to care for the farmers in the stricken areas, and that further relief will be granted from time to time.

Two officials of the government recently concluded a tour of Saskatchewan crop-failure areas and made a report which indicated that the relief costs in that province would be as heavy this winter as last.

For reward wheat, Hamilton Bros., of Lethbridge, Alberta, had the finest exhibit and Axel Berghqvist, of Sanford, Man., captured honors in the Minnesota class.

Western Canada entrants topped all others in the white oats section of the seed grains in sacks at the Royal Winter Fair. H. H. Taylor, of Lashburn, Sask., led a lot of 26, while second and third places fell to Lester Hall, Edmonton, Sask., Alberta, and H. C. Neufeld, Codette, Sask., respectively.

Two other western Canada entries, Wm. J. Rigby, Wembley, Alberta, and Stephen C. Harrington, Marwayne, Alberta, won fourth and fifth places.

Germany Asks Return Of Saar Territory

Greatest Obstacle To Accord With France States Hitler

Paris, France.—A government spokesman said that the French door is wide open to Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, if he cares to proffer an olive branch.

This authoritative invitation was made as a comment on an interview with the German chief by Fernand de Brion, a close friend of former Premier, Edouard Daladier, published in the newspaper, Le Matin.

The interview quoted Hitler as offering peace and security to France in return for equality for Germany.

Le Matin said Hitler visualized the greatest obstacle to accord between France and Germany as the question of the Saar Territory, now held by France. The French government spokesman said, "the question is whether Chancellor Hitler will submit to the supervision of the armaments we know he is building."

"I am convinced," said Hitler, "that once the question of the Saar—which is Germany land—has been settled, there is nothing, absolutely nothing, which can oppose Germany to France."

Despite Germany's desire to avoid war, which the chancellor said "would settle nothing and only make worse the state of the world," Hitler reiterated his intention not to return to the League of Nations.

"It has aggravated instead of clearing up the misunderstandings of the world," he said.

Likely To Be Ignored

No Comment Made On Outburst By British Labor Member

London, Eng.—Apparently nothing more will be heard of the occurrence in the House of Lords as parliament opened when John McGovern, fiery Labor leftwinger, burst out in front of the King and Queen and the assembled nobility of England, at the conclusion of the speech from the throne, with a denunciation of the peers and peeresses as "parasites" living on the wealth created by the people "while the people starve."

The House of Commons adjourned debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne without any reference to the incident being heard in the House.

Fast Driving

Motorists From Vancouver To East Claim They Beat Train

Barrie, Ont.—Driving day and night on their trip from Vancouver, two youthful Barrie motorists claim they made faster time than the fast transcontinental train.

The youths, Vernon R. Taylor and Douglas Campbell, arrived here Tuesday night and said they covered the 3,397 miles in an elapsed time of 108 hours and 71 hours actual driving time. A letter they mailed in Vancouver had not been delivered in Barrie when they arrived.

Dr. MacMurphy Retires

Has Been Head Of Child Welfare For Last Thirteen Years

Ottawa, Ont.—A kindly and aggressive personality in child welfare work, Dr. Helen MacMurphy has been retired from the Department of Pensions and National Health, since 1920 she has been chief of the division of child welfare in Ottawa. She is taking up her residence in Toronto.

Last summer Dr. MacMurphy made a notable speech in Winnipeg before the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada on "The Mother, the Children and the New World Order." It is a gripping address which was later circulated in printed form throughout the country.

Dr. MacMurphy has written some 25 books and pamphlets. She graduated from the University of Toronto in 1901 and did post graduate work in famous hospitals of the United States.

As head of the Child Welfare division here, she was energetic in the prevention of infantile paralysis.

DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE TO TAKE RECESS

Geneva, Switzerland.—Formal work of the world disarmament conference was suspended until mid-January, by a vote of its steering committee, to permit diplomatic negotiations aimed at saving the parley and getting Germany back.

The committee accepted unanimously a statement by Arthur Henderson, British chairman of the conference, that there shall be "parallel and supplementary effort between the various states and the full use of diplomatic machinery conducted energetically to advance in every possible way the work of the conference."

It was learned that France particularly is inclined to draw a parallel between the political positions of Germany, which withdrew from the discussions last month, and Japan, and is convinced that disarmament efforts, to succeed, must be of universal scope. In this British delegates were said to concur.

The full negotiations, it was learned, will be directed toward rebuilding a Franco-British joint policy and then be extended to Italy and finally to Germany.

It was authoritatively stated that Great Britain and France, without agreeing on details, had already reached an understanding on their expected common policy based on a principle that they will not be influenced by any German "threat."

Premier Mussolini, of Italy, who is known to have suggested a four-power parley in Italy, was pointed to as a possible mediator between France and Britain on the one hand and Germany on the other.

Favors Central Bank

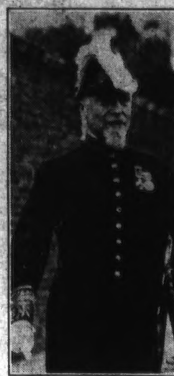

Montreal, Que.—The Canadian banking system is sound and little in need of organization, said Sir Maurice Bonham Carter, London financier, in an interview here, but establishment of a Canadian central bank would greatly aid "the uniform stabilization of finance throughout the British Empire."

A PICTUREQUE SOCIETY WEDDING IN INDIA

One of the most picturesque weddings to take place in India was formulated at the Church of the Redemption, New Delhi, when Major Richard Travers Lawrence, M.C., married Miss Elizabeth Margaret Addison. The bridegroom, a former A.D.C. to the Viceroy of India, is the private secretary to His Excellency the Governor of the Punjab, while his bride is the daughter of Major-General G. H. Addison, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., and Mrs. Addison. Our picture shows the happy bride and groom leaving after the ceremony, which was attended by the Viceroy of India and the Countess of Willingdon.

RE-ELECTED GOVERNOR

The re-election of Montagu Norman as head of the Bank of England has been recommended by the court of the bank. This means Mr. Norman will be re-elected automatically when his present term expires on March 14 next.

Wheat Carryover

Expected To Effect Reduction By End Of Crop Year

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada will probably be able to reduce its wheat carryover by the end of the present crop year. July 31 next, United States wheat will doubtless be successful in materially reducing its wheat stores by that date. This was forecast by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a report issued recently.

Australia will have a crop this year of possibly 165,000,000 bushels. Last year it was 210,000,000. Argentine may raise 200,000,000 bushels. Add the production estimates of the four countries together and the total is considerably below a year ago.

On the other hand, Europe has grown more wheat. The latest estimate places the total European crop at 1,645,000,000 bushels this year. Last year it was 1,480,000,000. The heavy European crop is limiting exports to those countries.

Makes Britain's Task Hard

International Refutations Affected By Exaggerated Reports Stated Premier

London, Eng.—In the House of Commons, while making his speech when the House re-opened, Prime Minister MacDonald referred to what he described as a very unbalanced attack by the opposition against private armament firms in Britain, in which it had been charged Britain supplied one-third of the total export trade in armaments.

That was an exaggeration of the grossest character, said the Prime Minister, "which becomes almost fantastic."

"Exaggerated and disturbing statements of this kind," said the Prime Minister, "only make more difficult the task of this country in international relations."

Russian Plane Wrecked

Fourteen Including Chief Pilot And Mechanic Reported Killed. Moscow, Russia.—A dispatch from Kharkov said the newly-constructed aeroplane, K-7, was to be the largest aeroplane for overland flying in the world, crashed there, killing 14 persons.

The dead were reported to include the chief pilot and mechanic and several Kharkov aviation officials, but beyond these bare facts no details were given. The craft was a six-motored monoplane without the orthodox fuselage.

Instead, all accommodations for luggage and fuel space, as well as controls, were in the wings. Only a slight framework of steel composed the structure on which the rudder was anchored.

The great aeroplane's capacity was designed to carry 128 persons, including its crew. It was designed with sleeping accommodations for 64 persons. It was commissioned only last week.

Will Visit Canada

Lord Baden-Powell, Head Of Boy Scout Movement To Tour Dominion

Ottawa, Ont.—Announcement of a visit to Canada in September and October, 1934, by Lord Baden-Powell, world head of the Boy Scout Movement, was made by His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Chief Scout for Canada, at a semi-annual meeting of the executive committee of the Canadian General Council of the Boy Scouts Association. Lord Baden-Powell will be accompanied by Lady Baden-Powell, world chief Girl Scout.

The two leaders will meet Scouts and Guides, and review Boy Scouts and Girl Guides at various points across the Dominion. At the conclusion of the tour they will sail from Vancouver for Australia.

Secretary Of Social Service Council To Investigate Conditions

Winnipeg, Man.—Armed with blank authority from the Dominion government to investigate conditions in Canadian penal institutions, Rev. J. Phillips Jones, Toronto, general secretary of the Social Service Council of Canada, was in Winnipeg recently. He will inspect Stony Mountain penitentiary in Manitoba and later will travel west to visit Prince Albert and New Westminster, B.C., penitentiaries.

Dr. Jones has already inspected Kingston, Ontario, penitentiary. His credentials entitle him to question prisoners. He has held ministerial charges at Winnipeg, Calgary and Lethbridge.

ADVISER OF ROOSEVELT NOW IN OPPOSITION

Philadelphia.—James P. Warburg, who has been regarded as unofficial economic adviser to President Roosevelt, expressed his "reluctant" opposition to some of the methods of the president's monetary policies.

"What I reluctantly oppose," said the New York banker who was financial adviser to the American delegation to the world economic conference, "are some of the methods by which he seeks to attain his goal, some of the misconceptions that seem to becloud his purpose, and the disregard of the accumulated experience of centuries manifested by all too many of his advisers."

Warburg made a surprise address at the American Academy of Political Science in aligning himself with Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, recently resigned special adviser to the treasury, in seeking to arouse public opinion against the president's monetary policies.

At the same meeting Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale University, said in an address the monetary policy of President Roosevelt "is substantially right."

Warburg expressed doubt "that as a practical matter there can be any such thing as a dollar of constant purchasing power," which President Roosevelt expounded in his message to the economic conference last July, and the banker revealed for the first time that he had resigned from the American delegation after the President's message had been received in London.

He said he did not let his resignation become known at that time because he was "still hopeful of being able to convince the president that it would be a mistake to continue his policy of monetary uncertainty and experimentation."

CAMPAIGN FOR REFORM OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS

London, Eng.—Conservative backbenchers in the House of Commons fired the opening shot of what was seen as an intensive campaign for reform of the House of Lords. They launched their offensive during the debate on the reply to the speech from the throne.

It was evident reformers in both Houses would attempt to induce the government to tackle the question before the next general election, taking the view the make-up of the House of Lords is such as to throw the country's constitution out of balance and lay the House of Lords open to abolition in the event of a Socialist majority in the House of Commons. So far Conservative members of the House of Lords have been reluctant to agree among themselves on a measure of reform.

In reply to the urgings of the would-be reformers, Conservative Leader Stanley Baldwin delivered a 10-minute speech in which he said the government had not even considered the question and that he was convinced the House of Commons would never consent to granting the Lords powers which might put their House in a position of equality or superiority with the Commons.

May Appoint Commission

Clearing Up Of Natural Resources Question Deemed

Ottawa, Ont.—The cabinet is considering the advisability of appointing one or two commissions to clear up the natural resources question between the Dominion and Saskatchewan and Alberta. It is learned that the advisability of dealing with this question was discussed at length and that the consensus of opinion among ministers was for early action.

One point to be decided is if a single commission could deal with the claims of both provinces or if separate commissions should be appointed. It is felt here that the work would be facilitated and danger of later disputes minimized if one man acted as chairman in both inquiries. Moreover, it is altogether likely that the government will nominate the same commission and the same counsel to look after the Dominion's interests. Each province, however, would be entitled to separate representation.

Stands Behind League

Cannot Be Blamed For Present Bitterness: States Vatican Paper

Rome, Italy.—The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano printed a strong defence of the League of Nations from which Italy's imminent withdrawal has been hinted.

The Osservatore advised against attempts to reconstruct the league at present "when there are so many divisions among the peoples."

"Reason for the present bitterness," it added, cannot entirely and in justice be attributed to the league.

The Osservatore Romano's attitude was in marked contrast to that of the Italian press which has bitterly criticized the league and has hinted broadly that Italy will abandon it.

Charges Canada Delays Agreement With Russia

British Labor Member Makes Statement In House Of Commons

London, Eng.—"It is atrocious that Canada should prevent Britain from entering into a new trade agreement with Russia," declared J. Batey, Labor member for Spennymore, during debate in the House of Commons on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Batey argued the long delay in concluding the negotiations for a new pact with Russia was because of Canadian protests against the impact of Russian timber on British exports. Canada contended is against the spirit of the Ottawa trade agreement.

Montreal, Que.—The world's famous train, the "Royal Scot," was loaded on board the freighter, "Beaverdale" for return to England, while she left for the Americas. The train which toured Canada and the United States arrived November 24, here.

A mountain 21,000 feet high has been added to the impressive ranks of Tibetan peaks by a recent discovery.

In the pages of the Press, and from the public platform appear from time to time articles or speeches containing much thought provoking suggestions, and on our files are many contributions clamoring for a place in print, each offering a cure-all for the ills of our people of this province or the world at large. That there is much radically wrong with 'things as they are' is very evident. The question is: What is the remedy? Will any re-organization of the monetary system, change of government, or any local panacea bring to us again the so called "Good Times" we desire? Does not the difficulty lie deeper than just the system employed? Does not our chief trouble arise from within ourselves? In other words: Would any new system work successfully while within each of us is the desire to get all we can for ourselves regardless of the cost to our fellowmen; while our standard is that of the savage? What is yours is mine if I can get it? Will any system, no matter how Utopian it may appear in its presentation, work out as desired while we hold such standards?

In 1914 a holocaust was launched upon the world which was often termed "a war to end war." Only nineteen years have passed and we now see the institution from which we had hoped so much, The League of Nations, dis-assembling and breaking up in disagreement, Germany and Japan withdrawing from the League, while the nations of the world are like cats on the back fence jangling and disagreeing, watchfully waiting for the right opportunity to spring at one another's throats. Behind the scenes are those who would make fortunes from war, either by the sale of ships and munitions of war, or from appreciation of values of their investments as a result of war. The writer heard a citizen of our own town express, the thought recently that war was the only remedy for the labor situation, and that he hoped it would come soon. Did he stop to think that not only his own sons but those of his friends and neighbors would be among those called upon to risk their lives or make the supreme sacrifice in order that these fictitious "Good Times" may be experienced? In other words did he realize that he was willing to sacrifice his own children to the god of war in a vain hope for financial gain?

Some nineteen hundred years ago The Man of Galilee seated on a hill, gave to the little group around Him the real cure-all for the ills of the individual and the world in general and until men individually and collectively, decide to follow those precepts and realize that in the adoption of His standards alone, can come a safe and sure panacea for the ills of the world, there is little hope through the application of ideas or ideals which do not go to the root of the disease.

War Clouds in Europe

H. D. Scott Describes Conditions in Germany—Grave Danger of Large-Scale War.

Despite the strenuous efforts being made by a hundred agencies to head it off, Europe is again in grave danger of war; and again the threat comes from Germany. Germany, growing into one of the world's leading nations, made a supreme effort to dominate the world, and failed; the losses resulting from that failure, all her colonies, one seventh of her European territory, and an enormous indemnity indebtedness, which she never finished liquidating, and probably never will. Added to these losses was the humiliating occupation of the Rhineland by French troops, some of them black.

Hitler, the man who has usurped the saddle in Germany, and is playing on the ambitions of the people, is an Austrian by birth, of humble origin. He embodies and expresses the German resentment under their defeat. His power depends on this, and, perhaps, on the novelty of his type. German political leaders of the past have been rather stolid, long winded, hardworking, matter-of-fact men. Hitler is magnetic and emotional. His one theme is that Germany has been ill-treated and must secure restoration of her past glories.

Mr. Scott described the ingenious way in which the Nazis obtained power, by first allying themselves with Von Papen's minority, by organizing and drilling their troops and then stirring up trouble for a pretext to interfere, telling the government it could not keep order, so they, the Nazis, would do it for them, and quietly dropping their allies. These disorders were characterized by extreme brutality, the principal victims being the Communists and the Jews. It was a case of the mentality of the Middle Ages using the machinery of today. The Jews, by their superior intelligence, had made themselves a very powerful factor in Germany, in medicine, law, the civil service and finance. Some people, especially the Nazis, claimed that their influence was not healthy, that they had corrupted these services and professions. Instances of the disorders were described, such as the attack on the Nuremberg girl, and the Roman Catholics at Munich.

Victory, said the speaker, was the only avenue of escape for usurpers and upstarts, and Hitler had promised Germany victorious rehabilitation. The young men of the country were preparing for war. They are itching to recover their lost lands, the Rhineland, the Ruhr Valley, Alsace-Lorraine, Posen, Schleswig, West Prussia, Silesia. It was significant of their vaunting spirit that the Austrian Tyrol, which never did belong to Germany, was included in the list of lands to be "recovered."

Strained relations with Austria were reviewed, the German attempt to include them in the scheme, and the rather surprising resistance of Austria, under Chancellor Dollfuss, against Nazi-ism. The lecturer showed a poster he had succeeded in smuggling out of Austria enumerating the long list of outrages, committed by the brutal Nazis against Austria. The steady trickle of Austrian Nazis across the frontier to the larger country, he thought was rather winked at by the government, who were not sorry to lose them.

All this restlessness, of course, had its reaction on other powers. Italy had found it convenient to hold her annual army manoeuvres in Piedmont, in the extreme north of Italy, and France in the Alsace-Lorraine. Italy and France, by the threat from a common enemy, were tending to bury their own unfriendliness, and talk was heard of a great customs union between all the Danubian countries—Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, Bulgaria, with Italy as leader, and channel for their trade to the Mediterranean.

Germany had definitely antagonized the whole of the rest of the world by her swaggering, bullying and medieval attitude, and the Jews, powerful in finance and commerce in nearly every country, were boycotting her.

Women had been ousted from all responsible positions, from all civil and public service. The whole world was definitely alarmed, and if Germany again provokes a major war, she may be broken up into small states, for Europe's protection against a third breach of international peace.

Continuation Of

Mr. Love's Address

Speaking of the telephone situation, Mr. Love stated that twenty millions were invested in telephones and over 15,000 miles of rural lines were built when the present government came into power in 1921. Miles and miles of these lines have been lost money ever since the day they were built. Many of these lines must now be either replaced or torn down. The government's policy is to offer these lines, to the farmers at a price that will give them telephone service at the very maximum of cost. The Alberta Telephone System is well managed and efficiently operated but it has been loaded with more miles of pole lines than the entire Bell Telephone Company serving both the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario. Our telephone troubles are confined almost entirely to our rural system eighty-five percent of which was built under the former administration.

Our interest in debt increases over five and one-half million dollars as a loan to the Alberta Wheat Pool of which every cent of interest is paid back in yearly payments to the Province by the Wheat Pool.

Our opponents say the carrying charges on our public debt were $1,400,000.00 in 1921. Even if they stated the actual amount, which was $340,000.00 in 1921, they overlooked the fact that most of the interest on our railways was capitalised in 1921 and not charged to revenue as it should have been and they also overlooked the fact that the $22,000,000.00 added to our direct and indirect debt in 1921 alone meant adding about another million dollars to our debt carrying charges in 1922. Our present debt carrying charges of $7,000,000.00 cannot be reduced so long as provincial governments are compelled to finance their capital requirements, under our present financial position.

The soundness of Alberta's financial position is such that of the bond issues placed on the market this year by the four Western Provinces, Alberta has been able to sell its bonds at a lower cost than any of the other Western Provinces.

The high-tights of Mr. Love's answer to the criticisms respecting the government's failure to reduce administration costs, eliminate wasteful expenditures and duplication in services, may be summarized as follows:

1. With over a million dollars of new services the government is spending over $200,000.00 less on all public services, exclusive of debt charges, this year than was spent in 1921. (Est. Expenditure 1931, $3,125,000.00; 1925-26, $7,084,000.00)

2. Public health, institutions and public school grants this year will account for over $2,600,000 which represents one-third of all expenditures on public services.

3. With nearly 100,000 the population in our mental institutions since 1921 with every bed in the Central Alberta Sanatorium occupied per day per patient, public health institutions require $700,000 more than in 1921.

4. With 170,000 more class rooms than in 1921 we are spending on school grants this year only $91,000 more than in 1921.

5. New services, not in existence in 1921, all of which have been cut to the maximum, will require over one million dollars this year. These include Land and Mines Dept. over $400,000; Old Age Pension, $200,000; Superannuation $135,000; University Hospital $60,000; Debt Adjustment Act $55,000; and many other smaller items.

6. With 170,000 more people to serve and with 7,000,000 more acres under cultivation, the administration costs of various departments of the government have been reduced by over $2,000,000 since 1921.

8. The number of permanent employees working for the government today is two hundred and thirty-nine less than in 1921.

9. In 1930, the year before we had the expense of administering our Natural Resources, the citizens Research Institute of Canada issued a report showing that for all provinces in Canada, Alberta has the lowest increases in per capita expenditures of any province in Canada for the period from 1922 to 1930.

9. In 1930 the government went to the country proposing to spend on public services, not including Land and Mines Department, $11,235,000. The people returned the government with an overwhelming majority. This year, excluding the Land and Mines Department, the government is spending $3,700,000 less on public service than in 1930.

10. In 1921 our per capita expendi-

variety and our delivery is a time-table sort of service—always on time. Our meats—well, you've heard about them—you know they are the finest in the land and you've also been creditably informed that our prices won't offend your sense of economy.

tures on public services, exclusive of debt charges, was $14,72. This year with a population of 700,000 it stands at $10.50, a reduction since 1921 of 28.7%. In 1930-31, the year the people returned the present government to office, it stood at $19.10. In that in three years the government has made a reduction in per capita expenditures on public services of 45%. Alberta, during the past three years, has made more drastic cuts, in public expenditure than any other province in Canada.

11. It costs the Federal Government $1,750,000 to administer Alberta's Natural Resources in 1928. We are administering our own Natural Resources this year at a cost of only $449,000.00.

Our opponents have levelled much criticism at the so-called fill, and wasteful expenditures in our Agricultural Department in an attempt to make the people believe that a farmer's government is a class government because it spends so much on agriculture. Our taxpayers can get the best of both worlds. Our Government in fact have a U.F.A. Government in front of them, and this is just the Department where the greatest of economies have been made. In 1921 the Liberal had 173 employees in the Department of Agriculture and spent $763,000. This year the present government has a staff of only eighty-eight employees and is costing the taxpayers only $345,000, a saving of $420,000 in administration costs. Yet with this drastic economy the Department of Agriculture, charged with incompetency by Government opponents, is praised by the daily press for the manner in which it conducted the grasshopper campaign and is now conducting the present feed relief situation, its better livestock and better seed campaign have had no small part in establishing Alberta as the home of prize winning livestock breeders and the province whose grain exhibitors at Regina this year, in competition with all the countries in the world, brought back to Alberta one-third of all the prizes awarded.

Mr. Love said that one of the chief plans of putting Alberta on a sound financial basis was through reducing the number of members in the legislature. Supposing said Mr. Love, all the members were eliminated, the total saving would only amount to $113,000, which would not reduce our total expenditure one percent.

Dealing with taxation Mr. Love stated that since 1921 the U.F.A. Government has imposed only two new general taxes on the people of Alberta—the gasoline tax and the income tax.

No province in the Dominion of Canada has a lower gas tax than Alberta while Alberta has the lowest income tax of the four Western Provinces which impose income taxes.

Nine million more acres under cultivation and 170,000 more people in the province than in 1921 are bound to provide Alberta with a great increase in revenue without any increase in the rate of taxation. In 1928 the Dominion Government obtained $2,250,000 of revenue from our Natural Resources. Today we get the revenue from our Natural Resources and our opponents would have the people believe that this increased revenue is obtained by increased taxation. The number of cars in Alberta has increased 150% giving us a large increase in revenue from the license tax on our opponents call increased taxation.

A Government with such a record for efficiency and economy in the administration of public affairs as is held by the present government in Alberta need have no fear of losing the public confidence.

An End To Money

By Colin McKay

Reprinted From The Canadian Unionist

The demand for currency inflation may be regarded as a symptom of the growing revolt against the power of money. Gold, the money commodity, has appeared as a selfish ruling men in their material affairs. Though it has been a powerful tool of progress, it has also been a hard task-master of men, driving them ruthlessly to the accomplishment of tasks, the social significance of which few understood.

Thus the present growing revolt against the power and mystery of money is of high historic significance; it signifies a growing recognition of the fact that money has fulfilled its mission, that the economic and social system dependent on a money mechanism has reached the limits of its development and cannot now serve the requirements of further social progress. After four years of retrogression it is becoming obvious to all but the "great minds" that competitive commodity production must expand or grind the masses to powder, and that new forms of production to absorb its surplus products, or new frontiers to absorb its surplus workers, cannot be found. It must be evident, too, that there is no real hope that science and invention will save competition capitalism by developing new industries, for how could the new industries sell their products when the masses of the workers the world over are only able to obtain a bare subsistence and when only the strategically placed capitalist enterprises are making profits for their shareholders?

From being the servant of commodity production, money has become its tyrannical master, recognizing no social responsibility. A former head of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the late Byron Walker, said:

"The chief duty of the executive officers of a bank is to make demands for the shareholders. All industrial efforts of men are based on self-interest, and not on any recognized or intended plan of cooperation. In discussing the relations of banking to other industries, I recognized selfishness as the basis of those relations."

The growing revolt against the money power is also a revolt against a philosophy of life that is indifferent to the requirements of human dignity and human decency. The foregoing considerations indicate why it is advisable to treat the increasing demand for currency inflation as a social phenomenon of first-rate historic significance. True, this demand is only a manifestation of economic illiteracy, if the hope is that by increasing the supply of paper currency the system of competitive commodity production can be made to function in an orderly manner. But men sometimes "build better than they know"; their instinctive reactions are sometimes wiser than their intellectual reactions.

Whether it is by inflation or by direct action that the offices of greed and oppression is toppled from the backs of the workers and farmers is a secondary matter. It is not a question of a blind Semtex pulling down the temple of the Philistines; the people have few savings in the hands of the money power to be evaporated by inflation, and most of the farmers have only debts to lose. At least inflation would help to bring matters to a head and reveal more clearly the contradiction between the requirements of a new era of progress and the conditions of the continued use of money as the incentive of industry and the measure of the value of production.

The forms and forces of production have so developed that they cannot operate satisfactorily within a legal system of which the blind, footless power of money is the chief agent. In a regime of simple production by individual hand tools money served to effect a fairly equitable distribution of the products. But in a regime of production by great corporations, money functions as capital and becomes a means of exploitation.

Money has therefore fulfilled its mission, and may now be discarded as a tool of civilization. The outcome of evolution, of which money was a powerful tool, was the development of the technique of production and the possibility of an era of plenty and along with its technique, social conditions so intolerable as to render absolutely necessary the adoption of a planned economy the establishment of a regulated society.

But in a planned economy, a regulated society, the need of real money will disappear. In a society regulating production and consumption according to a settled plan, things will not be produced as commodities, that is goods for exchange with other goods or labor power. Such a society will produce use values to be distributed for direct consumption in accordance with the social will. Money, then, will not be needed as a measure of value, but only as a means of certifying the individual's right to share the general social production, and of facilitating the distribution of the products. The determination of the prices of use values will be an arithmetical production and consumption.

The revolt against money has therefore an important historic significance, it is really a revolt against a social order that has outlived its usefulness — a demand for a new order of society based on a planned economy, the regulation of both production and distribution. In its function as a means of the exchange of commodities real money can be replaced by its symbols. If one thinks only of this function one infers that money itself is a symbol of a social convention. Whatever the new society uses to facilitate the distribution of use values will only be a symbol of the social will, a social convention.

Other considerations support the view that society cannot much longer afford to continue a mode of production that depends on money. To serve as a measure of value the money commodity must be scarce enough to be recognized as a social form of wealth always in demand. To serve as a means of the exchange of commodities the requirements is abundance. Again to serve as a means of deferred payment or credit, the requirement is again abundance. The same money commodity is expected to meet these contradictory requirements. The eventual outcome of these contradictions must be the collapse of the monetary system, with it the system of production dependent upon it. The precarious state of the money mechanism now is shown by the fact that the U.S. has opposed the demand for real money by making private hoarding a crime. It is fortunate that the fatal defects of capitalism are manifesting themselves in the breakdown of the money system. Thus warning is given that the system of production must be changed in order to avoid anarchy and starvation. What are its errors, the Roosevelt experiment (which set out to save over-capitalization of industry and perpetuate debt burdens) is a step in the direction of substituting co-operative production, which must be followed by other steps in the direction of a planned economy, a regulated society, if the nation is not to fall into a worse plight than it has been trying to escape from.

COLDEST IN 93 YEARS

(Acton, Ont., Free Press, Nov. 10)

According to meteorological authorities, this year is the coldest first half of November since 1840. That is ninety-three years ago, so few will dispute the accuracy of this statement. Tuesday night it was reported to be two below zero, and the thermometer hovered around 10 below during the day. Last night a couple of thermometers on Mill St. here were taking the temperature of seven below zero.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful art student, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, fall in love and marry secretly, deciding to live apart until the time Peter can establish himself. Camilla, the adopted daughter of wealthy parents, is not to inherit money when she comes of age, she is preparing herself for life as a housewife, in commercial art, hoping to get a job to enable her to support herself. She has been making the rounds of agencies.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIX.

Returning home, Camilla was surprised to discover how tired she was with the day's efforts. Study and classes at school had been peremptory, but there was a vast difference between preparation for work and work itself, or even obtaining it, she already had discovered. While she dressed for dinner, she reviewed in her mind some of the truths which had made themselves evident to her that day. She always had supposed that if you were willing to work, there was a place for you. It was obvious that not only was that supposition wrong, but that not even if you were capable of doing the work you chose, you were given the opportunity.

Glancing around at the furnishings of the big luxurious room, she had the sheltered her for so long, and making rapid calculations with the values of her possessions, she was astounded at the time she estimated it would require her to earn the money they represented.

Even if she were given the opportunity to work for pay, how long would it take her to earn what the clothes she was putting on had cost her? Her frock was an imported model that had cost three hundred dollars, her shoes, twenty-five; her stockings and lingerie another seventy-five. Her wardrobe and dressing table drawers were filled with such costly garments.

Of course, she knew that when she earned her own living, she would no longer patronize exclusive shops and wear hand embroidered lingerie. But she wondered how many of the women who wore such garments could earn the money for even very poor substitutes, if they were obliged to. With sudden panic, she wondered if she could.

Sitting before the triple cheval glass of her dressing table, Camilla did not see her glowing beauty. She was gazing into the vast and chaotic abyss that gaped suddenly at her feet—that chaos of life into which she was about to leap. Approaching it, she had no so confident and secure; standing now at the brink and gazing into its abyssal depths, she drew back with horror. Then suddenly, there appeared before her

Peter's dear and earnest face, the grave eyes, sparkling with that smile she loved, and she reached out and clasped his hand, no longer afraid. She was ready to leap into life—with Peter.

Peter was modelling with intense interest, striving for a new effect before the idea should become lost in the ethereal confusion of escaped inspirations that their originators had failed to capture quickly enough. His hands were gray with paint, and his mind was projected into the realm of creative fancy. A knock on the door suddenly interrupted the summer morning stillness and drew him back to reality.

His forehead wrinkled with annoyance, for he had no wish to be disturbed. Then the reminder that it might be Camilla who had come to see him, made him call quickly. "Come in." He always wanted to see Camilla, no matter how disturbing she might be. There was an instant's hesitation, then the knob turned and the door opened to disclose a strange girl. A very beautiful stranger, she was, so beautiful that Peter stared at her stupidly for a moment. The girl just smiled friendly and said, "May I come in?"

"That is what I told you to do," he said. "Find a chair, please. As you see, I am—er—busy." Somehow, he felt defensive toward her at once, and his voice reflected his attitude.

"Thanks," she said, crossing the room with casual, leisurely movements and sinking into the one armchair which graced the room. "You are Peter Anson, aren't you?" she inquired, raising her very blue eyes that were deeply shadowed with long, dark lashes. Their contrast with the pale gold of her hair was startling and effective.

"I can't deny that," Peter replied. "I'm Sylvia Todd," she offered.

"Miss Todd, how do you do," Peter inclined his head slightly. "What may I do for you?"

"Give me some work," she came to the point quickly. "I'm a model, and desperate for work." She took a cigarette from her purse and fired it with a lighter from the table beside her.

Peter dabbed tentatively at the clay figure on the turn stand. "I'm afraid you have come to the wrong place for that."

"You have a model now?"

"No."

"Well, you're a sculptor, aren't you?"

"Exactly. And five and five make ten—that's two days for a model. I can't afford one."

"And where do you expect to get without one?"

"I manage. I did that without one."

He indicated the group in the window alcove which he had made for Camilla. Miss Todd glanced at it casually. "Not bad. But neither will that kind of stuff get you anywhere."

"You mean nudes?"

"Sure. Symbolic stuff. That's what brings in the dough that makes the cake. And it's my line. Want to see my figure?"

"I noticed it when you walked across the room," diffidently.

She laughed shortly. "You would, of course. Well, here she is, using it for inspiration. Big Boy? Gee, you're quite an inspiration yourself!"

"No doubt you could be that," she smiled for the first time, "but I don't happen to be doing anything that needs it."

"Now is as good a time to begin as any. What about the National exhibit I heard you were going to enter?"

"I planned to."

"With what—that?" she nodded toward the immigrant group.

"Oh, no—that is just a personal possession."

"Well, you wouldn't ever get a look-in with that," she shrugged. "What then?"

"Why, I've had several hunches, but none of them suited me, quite, and I'm not sure now that I want to enter the exhibit."

"Afraid you might lose the scholarship?"

"More afraid I might win, if you will pardon my conceit."

"She stared at him in surprise. "Well, are you crazy, or am I cuckoo?"

"Neither. I hope. It just happens that affairs have developed recently to change my plans."

She watched him with a calculating expression for a moment. "A girl friend?"

"You aren't by any chance, a detective?" he inquired.

"If I were," she laughed, "I might not be out of work."

"I don't know," Peter observed. "The depression has hit everything."

"Don't I know it? Models in particular. Say, listen, Big Boy, when there's work enough to go half way around, this baby has more than she can do."

"I don't doubt it."

TAKE ENO'S FRUIT SALT

"But that isn't now." She tossed the stub of her cigarette into a tray and walked across the room to stand beside Peter. A heavy fragrance enveloped him, and some latent memory stirred. Unconsciously, he wondered where he had been surrounded by that same perfume before. His pungent sweetness denied a cheap variety and seemed incongruous on a girl who was desperate for work. Of course, a girl like Sylvia Todd spent money extravagantly when she did have it and therefore was more desperate when she did not, he concluded. She was saying in a confidential voice, "Tell you what I'll do, Mr. Anson. I'll work for half the regular pay, everything being on the down and down as it is. And if I were not hungry—you being on the bottom, yourself—I'd work for you for nothing." She added softly.

The word "hungry" startled Peter, and touched that responsive chord in him that denied no creature his work. "It is as bad as that!" he demanded anxiously.

She nodded, her head lowered, and when she looked up again the blue eyes glistened with tears, like dew on blue violets. But she smiled wanly. "I walked out here all the way from seventy-fifth, so I could use my last dime for a sandwich to have strength to work on."

"But what made you think I would hire you?"

"I heard you were going to enter the exhibit, and had no model yet. Don't you think I would do?" wistfully.

"You might—if I needed a model," he said thoughtfully. "As if we're considering something. Finally, 'Tell you what I'll do—let me give you a dollar for some dinner and I'll think it over again. If I decide that I need you and can afford to pay you, I'll let you know tomorrow. That's the best I can do now.'"

"That's awfully sweet of you. But I think you would be positively goofy not to try for the scholarship. If that was your first idea. Don't give it up, please, and if you can use me, I'll make the price as low as possible. After all, one meal a day is better than none."

Peat Bog Good Preservative

Old Coat Found In England Still In Fair Condition

That fashion in men's cloaks have changed little since the dark ages is shown by a mantle found by peat diggers, a bog near Reepsholt, on the Looze Canal, not far from Wilhelmshaven. Its age is estimated at about 1700 years, but the form is not much different from that of an officer's mantle today. It is astonishingly well preserved, as are objects in general that have lain in peat for centuries.

Legumes, such as red clover, alfalfa, clover, alfalfa, and peas are most important crops in a rotation, from the standpoint of maintaining the supply of nitrogen in the soil.

Not The Only Overhead

The good-looking summer boarder was enraptured about farm life.

"Oh, I'd just love to be a farmer," she purred, "and live with the blue sky overhead always."

"That would be all right," the farmer replied, "if the blue sky was the farmer's only overhead."

In Milwaukee fines ranging from five to twenty-five dollars are imposed on owners of dogs which howl at night and disturb neighbors, and that seems fair enough. No one has any business keeping a pet which becomes a nuisance to others.

Largest Swimming Pool

Building Planned For Wembley Will Cover Over Two Acres

Details of the proposed Empire swimming pool at Wembley have been outlined and it is stated that the building will be nearly half as large again as Albert Hall. It will be 420 feet long and 240 feet in width, and will cover an area of more than two acres.

Its roof span will be 240 feet—80 feet wider than the Main Hall at Olympia. The arena will be 300 feet by 35 feet, and the pool itself 300 feet long and 60 feet wide, with a maximum depth of 10 feet. From the level of the arena to the apex of the roof will be approximately 90 feet.

Wembley Stadium, Ltd., is providing the whole of the money, estimated at $750,000, for this new enterprise. It is intended to open the pool for the aquatic events of the British Empire Games in August next year.

There will be accommodation for 3,000 spectators, each of whom will have an upholstered tip-up seat. Wave-making machinery, which will cause the water to break on sloping "beaches" at either side of the pool, and under-water illumination, will aid in the lure to the bathers, who will also have a dance floor and fully licensed buffets provided for them.

Erect Sub-Arctic Mission

Work Of Two Priests At Repulse Bay Nearing Completion

Finishing touches are being given to a new mission of the Roman Catholic Church at Repulse Bay, lonely northern outpost, high up in the barren lands. Its construction is the work of Father Armande Chabreau and Rev. Father Pierre Henry.

Lumber and material for the building were taken in the summer from Churchill, 800 miles to the south. The mission will be a welcome addition to this small settlement situated at the southern tip of Melville Island.

Priests will minister principally to fur traders and nomadic bands of Eskimos who make frequent visits.

Repulse Bay nestles just south of the Height of Land. It was crossed and recrossed during the thrilling hunt for the lost MacAlpine party in 1929, and has been known to explorers since that time. Vectors from the "outside" are not numerous.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

UPLAND PICTURE

That summer day the air was amber wine.

Each rocky hill stood drenched in arctic dew.

I, stumbling, saw a drowsy snake entwined

Its mottled coil and slither past my feet.

Half heard and half surmised, an elfin sound

Of sheep bells tinkled all the afternoon.

And, while the sun went blazing on his round

From heaven there peered the green ghost of the moon.

There was no little breeze it scarcely stirred

Grotesque mesquites' dust-covered, catenary gins

There came no breath of flower, no song of bird

To break this strange enchantment of Far, far below the tawny river lay

Asleep, like all the land, that summer day.

Flights Across Atlantic

To Be Made With Regularity Of Railroad Trains In Near Future

At a meeting in New York a dozen flyers, aeroplane designers and manufacturers and representatives of American and European airlines discussed details of schedules for trans-Atlantic travel by air. On one point they all agreed—that by the end of 1934, or 1935 at the latest, seaplanes will be making scheduled flights across the Atlantic with the regularity of railroad trains.

Clarence D. Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic flyer, acted as chairman.

On these points too they agreed: That in two years at the most John O'Hara may fly with perfect safety from New York to Paris in 20 hours for $350.

That he may send a letter from the United States to Europe by air at a maximum cost of 50 cents an ounce.

That air freight, including a long list of articles ranging from salesmen's samples to race horses, will pay, the bills just as freight pays bills for the railroad.

Colony For Mentally Sick

Million Dollar Building For Defectives Opened In England

Sir E. Hulton Young, British Minister of Health, in opening a colony for mental defectives which was instituted by the Hertfordshire county council, at a cost of $1,250,000, said the people of the United Kingdom should not be content with the existence of mental deficiency to the degree that is the case in this country.

"For that reason," he continued, "we shall press ahead and search out every possible means of social and scientific work by which we can reduce mental deficiency." He added, "I put in the forefront of the work of the state and the local authorities the prevention of this evil and the necessity of finding the means whereby it may be diminished."

British Bacon Market

For the first time in history the World's Greatest Bacon Market has granted a definite quota to Canadian Bacon Producers, under Controlled Imports to Assure a Steady Market. Canada's quota is 280,000 lbs. annually.

The Key to This Market is Quality

Alberta was second in 1932 among all provinces in total hog marketings, but only eight hogs in every 100 marketed were suitable for the British trade.

Not More Hogs, but Better Hogs

What is needed is not greater numbers, but a greater proportion of the Select Bacon Type required by the British Market. Policies to Encourage Production of High Quality Bacon Hogs Suitable for Overseas, have been adopted by the Alberta Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Federal Government, Railways and Packers. These include hog banding and extra age of off-types sows by the farmers for selected gilts from the packing plants.
